

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method is disclosed for the production of CT images via a CT spiral reconstruction of object for examination moving in partial areas in a cyclical manner and a CT device therefor. During scanning of the object to be examined, various rates of advancement are used, irrespective of whether the scanned area is at least partially cyclically displaced or is stationary.